MELONWEB
KNOWLEDGE SOLUTIONS

Established in 1999, Melon Web specialises in the design, development and implementation of business solutions for;

Document processing

Melon Web's document processing solutions are used across a range of industries to scan, recognize and manage any type of document, from questionnaires, surveys and forms, to statements, invoices, bank cheques, promissory notes, medical prescriptions and more; ultimately enhancing existing business systems. Information can be automatically extracted from any document type, ultimately converting information stored on paper into usable electronic data.

Web content management

Melon Web offers comprehensive web content management (WCM) solutions that enable organizations to deliver a compelling web experience by building, deploying, and managing large-scale, persuasive, and interactive web sites. The solutions automate the entire process of managing web content, including authoring, site design, content publishing and deployment, content targeting and delivery, web content analytics, and user participation.

Search and information access

Search and information access solutions help people to search and find relevant information quickly and effortlessly. Often described as 'knowledge management' solutions, search and information access solutions unify all types of information and content whether it is structured or not. Powerful features like 'advanced search' and 'intelligent categorisation' allow content to be located and leveraged quickly and easily, regardless of where it resides.

Business process management

Melon Web's business process management solution consolidates information, aligns people, and automates the tasks needed to make better business decisions. By using intuitive e-forms, information is easily captured and automatically conveyed among people according to pre-defined or ad-hoc process flows. By integrating forms (e-forms and paper forms) with processes and people, waiting times are minimised and productivity is maximised.

Melon Web offers a wide range of document processing services, tailor made to customer needs, which include scanning, data capture/entry, content indexing/classification and electronic archiving. Its services are carried out either in-house or at the customer site. Melon Web serves its customers in a variety of industries including finance, manufacturing, retail, pharmaceutical, public sector, etc. and offers consulting and training services for all subject matters it is involved in.
